

Martin Luther King Jr.

Martin Luther King Jr. was a Black man and was born in the USA on January 15th 1929. As a child, he enjoyed playing sports, playing the piano and going to school. Sadly, life was often hard. Many people treated him differently because of the colour of his skin.

Life was difficult for Black people living in the USA. At the time, many White people did not respect people of other races and treated them very badly. There were separate areas for Black people and White people on public transport, parks, restaurants and even in toilets. Black people were not allowed to use the areas that were for White people.

Did You Know?

In 1955, Rosa Parks, a Black woman, was arrested after refusing to give up her seat on a bus to a White man.

Black children were not allowed to go to school with White children. They had to go to separate schools that didn't have many resources to help with their learning.

Martin Luther King Jr. was a Christian who wanted to make sure that all Americans had the same rights regardless of their race. He became a civil rights activist. This means that he campaigned for improved rights for people.

In 1963, Martin Luther King Jr. led a huge march in Washington DC, the US capital. In front of the enormous crowd, Martin Luther King Jr. made his famous "I Have a Dream" speech. Here is a short piece of that speech:

"I have a dream that one day little black boys and black girls will be able to join hands with little white boys and white girls as brothers and sisters."

It is because of Martin Luther King Jr., and others like him, that the law was changed to state that everyone in America had the same rights regardless of their skin colour. The law was also changed so that everyone could vote.

In 1964, he received the Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts to end racial prejudice in the United States.

Every January, there is an American national holiday to celebrate his birthday.

Martin Luther King Jr. was the leader of the Black civil rights movement. He spoke out against laws that separated Black people from White people and did not give Black people the same rights, and led marches demanding fair laws for all people. Martin Luther King Jr. was determined to ensure that all Americans had the same rights regardless of their race.

He was born on January 15th 1929 in Atlanta, Georgia, USA. His father was a pastor and his mother had been a teacher. Martin Luther King Jr. loved to play with his friends but, as his friends got older, two of them stopped playing with him. The father of one of the boys didn't like his son playing with Martin Luther King Jr. because Martin Luther King Jr. was a Black man. He was deeply hurt and upset and couldn't understand why the colour of his skin would make any difference.

Life was difficult for Black people and other people of colour living in the USA. Many White people did not respect them and treated them very badly. Black people were not allowed to use many of the same public places as White people. This was called 'segregation'. There were segregated areas on public transport, in parks, restaurants and even public toilets. Up until the 1960s, Black people in some states could not even vote in elections.

In some states, Black children had to go to separate schools from their White peers. These schools were often poorly funded and equipped.

The 1955 Bus Boycott

In 1955, Rosa Parks, a Black woman, was arrested after refusing to give up her seat on a bus to a White man in the city where Martin Luther King Jr. preached. Martin Luther King Jr. called on Black people to protest by not travelling on buses in that area. The boycott lasted for 385 days and the situation became so tense that Martin Luther King Jr.'s house was bombed. Other people were furious and wanted to retaliate with violence but Martin Luther King Jr. said that things needed to be solved peacefully and stressed the importance of White and Black people getting along. The boycott concluded with a United States Court ruling that ended racial segregation on all Montgomery public buses.

Martin Luther King Jr. went on to organise other non-violent demonstrations against the unfair treatment of Black people. In 1963, he led a huge march on Washington DC, the US capital. The march on Washington involved 250,000 people travelling to the Lincoln Memorial (Abraham Lincoln was the American president who abolished slavery). Here, in front of the enormous crowd, King made his famous “I Have a Dream” speech. Here are some short extracts:

“I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the colour of their skin but by the content of their character.”

“I have a dream that one day ... little black boys and black girls will be able to join hands with little white boys and white girls as sisters and brothers.”
